The GSK Respiratory Webinar Series is running on a monthly basis. These sessions will cover a range of major respiratory topics and give health care professionals the chance to hear and learn from their peers and other experts.

The second webinar in this series will discuss the role of ICS in COPD and what the IMPACT study tells us. Our chair for this event will be Allan Ullmann who will debate the results from this study with an expert panel.

There will be the opportunity for you to submit questions for discussion during our live Q & A session.

Don't miss out on what promises to be an informative and thought-provoking webinar series.

Chair Biography:

Allan Ullmann works for GlaxoSmithKline as a Medical Scientific Liaison (MSL). He is a registered nurse with an Intensive Care background. Allan worked at Saint Thomas' Hospital London before moving to the Regional Intensive Care Unit at Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital. GSK release Allan for a clinical session per week to work with NHS colleagues at a tertiary referral respiratory clinic in Belfast.

Allan started work with GSK in 2003, initially in primary care respiratory. In 2007 he was promoted to Area manager for Northern Ireland. In 2013, he took on the respiratory MSL role at GSK. This role, requires Allan to work with HCPs to reactively address respiratory clinical questions and support their medical information needs. In 2018 Allan became one of two National Nurse Leads at GSK. This role involves supporting UK nurses and representing their views to GSK.
